72 786. 'Lukuna' or [illegible] solid copper cross money 7" 34.00

This rare specimen made of pure native copper is not only interesting as an old money but the way it came to this collection is worth repeating. Many years ago I saw a specimen of this money in Chicago, later to be included in the Chase National Bank Collection. Year if to 20 years I searched the world over to get a specimen. I not only corresponded with scores of missionaries in the Belgian-Congo but circularized all dealers. Some missionaries wrote they had heard of them but never seen one; some said they had seen them in their early days but none were to be had now. They had been used until be they wives and that was no longer the custom. Yet, this specimen came to me from [illegible] in our colored slums.

Now...well one day a returned missionary from China called on from the Girls Institute, I met a [illegible] and explained that he had brought back a lot of old [illegible] from China and had been referred to me as an expert. I invited Rev. Parker and his wife to be my guest at dinner and to go over his coins. Waiting for them I was shown into a large waiting room in which there were several old china closets filled with odd and curious things which had been sent or brought back by the Institutes missionaries all over the world. On a shelf was a [illegible] [illegible]. It later developed that it had been there many years. It was of no value to them and they were nice enough to let me have it. My donation to the mission was reported.

This copper cross is made of almost pure 'native' copper and was used exclusively in wife buying.

787. Similar cross but only 7" across and light. This also has an interesting story. When corresponding with the missionaries I learned that while the old crosses were not to be had, there were modern crosses which some natives had for as missionary would [illegible] to send me one because [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] which [illegible] and were confiscated whenever they would be found. I approached the Governor of the Belgian Congo at Elizabethville who was kind enough to send me a specimen through the Belgian Ambassador. No cost

Here 71	789.	[illegible], Leiden Liver. Lenge & Leiden tribes. One of the aborigines with whom I was corresponding wrote that there existed the ruins of a huge stone walled city on Limbombe. It was first known around 1800 and is presumed to have been an early Portuguese city. Was then by the natives that small copper crosses which are almost the shape of a letter 'A'. A number of small clay pots were sold at and bev. Portuguese obtained them for me. All those now in various collections came from this find.

420. " Two large specimens of the 'Bapi' shell with deep red edge from which 'bagi' are made 10.00

NOTE: Here we have a perfect example of the 'law of supply and demand'. White shells of all kinds could be found on any beach and to make money from them required full time and labor but the deep red shell was found only in a certain locality and had to be 'tinded' for. This red shell was the 'gold' standard money of those islands.
